

TASK

PRE-prepare a Lost Flyer NOW, just in case

VALUE

If the unthinkable happens, you'll be ready to take action

INSTRUCTIONS

- Fill in the blanks
- Print:
 - A master copy so you're ready to make more copies if it's ever needed, and / or
 - Several copies so you can hit the ground running if you had to
- Save a copy online, on your mobile devices, and on a disc or USB drive
- Store paper and digital copies with your emergency supplies in a watertight bag or other dry container

NOTE

Make a flyer for each animal you care for and be sure to keep the pictures and data current as your animal ages, its condition changes, and / or as contact information changes.

provided by:

Animal Preparedness Pro. & Public Speaker

www.JoBecker.weebly.com

ABOUT JO BECKER

Jo Becker's introduction to emergency preparedness, disaster response, and incident management came in 2005 when she graduated from a local Community Emergency Response Team \(CERT\) program.

Since then Jo has dedicated herself to an aggressive self-education campaign including over 180 courses ranging from intensive, high level, weeklong Incident Command System (ICS) training offered by FEMA to a variety of animal-specific programs, as well as animal law and search and rescue conferences. She has participated in and helped plan and execute on full-scale disaster exercises, both people and animal focused.

Jo has trained with two technical animal response teams that utilize rope systems and specialized equipment to rescue both pets and livestock from peril. She also completed the Mazamas intensive basic mountaineering course.

Jo is a seasoned speaker and writer. She has been giving animal-related presentations since 2012. She has also presented on civil rights in housing – a potentially dry legal subject – to crowds of 2 to 400 to rave reviews since 2002. She's holds a master trainer certification from the Assn. for Talent Development and has been schooled in classroom facilitation.

Jo is a dedicated "pet mom" and "surrogate livestock handler" when neighbors are away. She's passionate about disaster planning for the entire family including our nonhuman friends. She also cherishes – and champions – critter connections of all kinds.

Jo's Animals-In-Disaster and animal behavior / communication / body language work offer a unique perspective. She takes an entertaining, personable approach to a "doom and gloom" subject, empowering audiences to consider why and how to prepare for the unexpected.

Regardless of topic, audience, or medium, Jo's aim is to inform, empower, & inspire with historical & relatable context, understandable concepts, & bottom line considerations. Learn more here; find articles, blogs, interviews, & media coverage here.

www.JoBecker.weebly.com

LOST! HELP ME GET HOME! LOST!

<INSERT PICTURE HERE>

Name: _____
Breed: _____
Sex: _____ Born: _____
Weight: _____ Height: _____
Colors: _____
Eyes: _____
Distinguishing Marks: _____
Seasonal Differences: _____
County License #: _____
Microchipped? _____
Chip registered with: _____

<INSERT PICTURE
HERE>

<INSERT PICTURE
HERE>

<INSERT PICTURE HERE>

PLEASE CONTACT:

_____ (mobile)

Or _____
Or _____

Or my veterinarian (Dr. _____); _____ (office)

Out of Area Emergency Contact: _____ (mobile)

<INSERT PICTURE HERE>

